THE DAILY NEWS.

BY MRS. BROWNING Sweet, thou hast trod on a heart.
Pass! there's a world full of men;
And women as fair as thou art
Must do such things now and then.

Thou only has stepped unaware—
Malice not one can impute;
And why should a heart have been there
In the way of a fair woman's foot?

It was not a stone that could trip, Nor was it a thorn that could rend; Put up thy proud underlip, 'Twas merely the heart of a friend.

And yet, peradventure, one day
Thou, sitting alone at the glass,
Remarking the bloom gone away,
Where the smile in its diouplement was.

And seeking around thee in vain. From hundreds who flattered before, uch a word as "Oh!" not in the main, Do I held thee less precious, but more.

Thou'lt sigh, very like, on thy part.
"Of all I have known, or can know,
I wish I had only that teart
I trod upon ages ago!"

NEW ORLEANS AND THE POPE.

Celebration of the Semi-Centennial Anniversary of the Elevation of Pius IX to the Priesthood-An Immense Dem-counts of the great Catholic celebration in that city on the 10th instant. A correspondent of the Louisville Courier, describing the scene,

The pontifical celebration, which was given by the Catholics here yesterday, was the most magnificent and immense demonstration that has ever been seen in New Orleans. This community is thoroughly Latinized. By far the largest proportion of the inhabitants is Catholic. The procession and ceremonies which took place yesterday were done in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of Pope Pius Ninth having taken orders as a priest. It was really the celebration of his Golden Wedding with the church.

To honor the occasion to the fullest extent admissable, every order of the priesthood, every society and order in the church, and which is Catholic in its practice, every school, civic society, the functionaries of the State and city, and an innumerable concourse of citizens, were in the procession. With banners of all descriptions flying, music from many bands making the city resound with their peans of loy and rejoicing, the immense demonstration passed along the route. This was lined on either side throughout the whole distance, and the spectators stood, during the transit, eagerly watching, and with unabated interest, the long line and its ever varying peculiarities. We reckon the line at least three and a half miles long. It passed at a rapid walk and in close compact order, two and three abreast, and occupied an hour and a half whilst passing any given point. To honor the occasion to the fullest extent close compact order, two and three abreast, and occupied an hour and a half whilst passing any given point.

The ceremonies which took place in front of the cathedral were of the most imposing character. All the priesthood and orders that are on duty in this city and vicinity were on the grand platform, and the interesting services were observed with wonderful interest by the vast throng, which filled every avenue and available foot of space in the vicinity.

It was truly gorgeous. Jackson Square had been set apart exclusively for ladies, and it was crowded to its utmost capacity, while the streets around were literally packed, even across the levee and to the very bank of the river, while the galleries of the Pontalba buildings were filled with gentlemen, and the very roofs of houses were alive with people. The most beautiful picture of all, as seen from the platform, was that of Jackson Square, set in a living frame of black and fringed by the evergreens and wreaths and symmetrically trimmed shrubbery, where stood a cluster of female loveliness dressed in holiday attire, wearing countenances pleased, yet anxious and interested, while above all stood the majestic statue of Andrew Jackson, the centre of this picture, the background of which was formed by a view of the mighty Mississippi, its steamboats and shipping.

The New Orleans Times, in its editorial re-

The New Orleans Times, in its editorial remarks on the celebration, says:

marks on the celebration, says:

It was certainly one of the grandest popular manifestations ever made in this city. In point of numbers, it exceeded any assemblage we ever witnessed. In the grandeur and sublimity of the scene, in the earnest enthusiasm and devotion of the multitude, in the vast array of women and children, in the tasteful and appropriate ornaments, and the solemnity of the ceremonies, everythin; combined to render the occasion one which impressed all beholders with an awe, reverence and respect, for the sincerity and earnestness of those who had thus gathered in such vast multitude, to test their veneration for the great father and head of the Catholic Church.

After a pause of about one minute, Thomas head of the Catholic Church.

After a pause of about one minute, Thomas Layton, Esq., rose and delivered a most impressive address. Mr. E. Burmudez then made an address in French, and Mr. — in German. All these gentlemen were enthusiastically applauded. His Grace the Archbishop then gave the benediction of the Biessed Sacrament, the music for the occasion being performed by the combined choirs of the city. His Grace the Most Bev. Archbishop then gave the Papal Benediction, thus closing the ceremonies of one of the grandest, most enthusiastic and most imposing religious ceremonies ever witnessed in New Orleans.

Columbus Market.

Columbus Market.

COLUMBUS, April 16—The season in this section has commenced disastrously. It is estimated that one-fourth of the cotion had been planted and was up. Tuesday and Wednesday mornings considerable white frosts appeared and thin ice was seen. Nearly all cotten that was up was killed, and the previous and succeeding cold has either sickened or stinted most of the remainder—thus rendering replanting necessary. Seed is very scarce, and sufficient to plant the same area cannot be obtained. The following are the reports of the warehouses for the week, the basis of sales being 26a26½c for middling to strict middling, all offered being taken: Saturday, sales 182 bales; Monday, sales 312; Tuesday, soles 365; Wedneeday, sales 513; Thursday, closing rather weak, sales 387 bales. To day's sales 164 bales. Market closed rather dull. The following are ruling quotations, implying strict classification: Ordinary 23a 24c; good ordinary 25c; low middlings 25½a2b½c; middlings (Northern) 26½a2b½c; good middlings 27c.

spinners, 2174 to speculators, and 15,750 to exporters.

Gross receipts at this port for the week, 5979 bales. Since 1st September 551,495 bales.

On the week our prices show an advance of ½ to ½c, and Liverpool is ½d higher. The large sales this week have relieved many holders, and the offering stock is considerably reduced. We have received accounts of frost in Alabama and Georgia. We do not hear that it extended beyond those States, or that much cotton was up to be injured. There is no doubt, however, that the planting season is two or three weeks later thau last year.

There have been received at the ports since 1st September 1,846,946 bales, of which exporters have taken 1,108,326; spinners 461 900; and the stocks have increased 276,720 bales. Deficit in receipts as compared with last year 135,312 bales. Deficit in shipments to Liverpool 285,247 bales. The deficit in receipts is probably at its maximum, as we have to compare with an average of only 15,184 bales for the next four weeks in 1868, and there are 36,172 bales more in the interior towns, part of which will be moved in when prices are satisfactory.

In our circular of April 10th, 1868, we reported the stocks in those places amount to 19,759 bales, which shows an increase of 7767 bales. On the plantations we hear that there is less cotton than at this time last year.

About this time last year prices had advanced to 30a320, and we warned our friends of the danger of holding cotton, and called attention to the following fact: 1. That spinners in England had bought freely and held very large stocks at the mills. 2. That the holding cotton, and called attention to the following fact: 1. That spinners in England had bought freely and held very large stocks at the mills. 2. That the consumption was likely to be checked by the high prices. 3. That the shipments from Bombay might be increased by the high prices. This year the situation is entirely different. Spinners have been resisting the advance in cotton, and have bought as little as possible. Then stocks at the mills are reduced to a minimum point, owing to the reduced production of goods; the stocks everywhere have been much diminished.

The governments reports from Bombay assure us production of goods; the stocks everywhere have been much diminished.

The governments reports from Bombay assure us that there will be 200,090 bales less shipped this year to England as compared with 1868. Besides, last year the planting season in the Fouth was propitious and there was no difficulty about labor. Whereas, this year the season is three weeks late, and from all sides we hear of scarcity of hands. We can see nothing to depress prices until October, and many things likely to cause an advance.

The Bombay Circular of 6th March says: The prospect of an export at all approaching to that of last year becomes duily less likely. Further reductions are made in the estimates of the Broach and Dhollera crops. And we may feel more and more certain that the total for the present year will not exceed 800,000 bales to Great Britain and 200,00) bales to the Continent.

Analysis of Rhodes' Mandard Superphosphate of Lime. Sulphate of Lime and other Salts not estimated......40.18

The above analysis indicates a Manurial Superphosphate of Lime of the highest grade ordinarily found in the American market. Its large amount of Soluble Phosphoric Acid supplies an active nutriment for the development and maturity of the fruitage. The Sulphuric Acid which it contains, by chemical affinity with the elements of most soils, contribute to its Fertilizing Properties. To show its best effects, this Superphosphate should be applied under and in contact with the Seed, and with a moderately shallow covering of soil.
